March 30, 2026

Dear Valued Customer,

Ongoing volatility in global oil and resin markets, due in part to the conflict in the Middle East, has caused further disruption across the supply chain. As a result, our polyethylene resin suppliers have formally announced raw material price increases ranging from $0.20 to $0.30 per pound, effective April 1, 2026. This adjustment represents an additional potential increase of approximately 20%, creating significant cost pressure beyond previously communicated adjustments.

Due to extended production lead times, continued market instability, and uncertainty surrounding supplier implementation timing, TRM Manufacturing will be required to adjust pricing accordingly. The timing of these adjustments cannot be confirmed in advance, and pricing may increase at any time and without prior notice. Existing orders, including orders already accepted or scheduled, may also be subject to adjustment if raw material cost increases occur prior to production or shipment.

Accordingly, all pricing is subject to change without notice. Final pricing will be determined at the time of order acknowledgement, and orders placed or released are not guaranteed protection from additional increases. Customers must contact their TRM Manufacturing sales representative for current pricing prior to placing or releasing orders.

We strongly encourage customers to plan accordingly, as continued geopolitical instability and market volatility may result in further pricing pressure. We appreciate your understanding and cooperation during this challenging period. Please contact your TRM Manufacturing sales representative immediately with any questions regarding current pricing, open orders, or future scheduling.

Sincerely
